

Norfolk Boxer Rescue

Boxers

It has been said that you need a highly developed sense of humour to be a Boxer owner, and this cannot be denied, but the fun, laughter and just plain love your Boxer will give you is second to none and once you have lived with a Boxer it is difficult to imagine living with any other breed.

The Boxer is a loyal friend and one of the best breeds. A rescue dog will reward many times over in return for all your love and affection.

They will be "one of the kids" if you have a young family and will take them all to their heart. They will know when you are unhappy and do their best to cheer you up, or they will creep up on your lap to tell you they sympathise. When you are cheerful they will take the hint and act the clown. They will never quite grow up and will still want to sit on your knee at 14 years of age, accompany you to the loo, and supervise all the household activities. They will do what you are doing; love their walks as well as joining in other family activities.

In short, your Boxer will be your best friend.
